Seasonable Address

To both Houses of

PARLIAMENT

SUCCESSION.

The Fears of

POPERY,

AND

ARBITRARY

Government.

and a Hearty Lover of his COUNTRY.

1. 0. N. D. O. N.

2017年17日 中国中国 1827年2月18日 经增加的基础

Seafonable Address

PARLIAMENT

POPERY.

ARBITRARY Government.

By a true PROTESTANT, And a Hearty Lover of Lis COUNTRY.

Like to the Year MOCLXXXI.

of the first upon our defence, to ober at it fooner is madnets and folly, an also repiets Check or consider our point his rateflay we take a review of the proceeding for the firm the entire King factor Reign the considered as now, full of marrougings, repinings and diffruits againfished comment. As fait the finother'd lembers built forth into a fature and at.

Both Houses of

PART ALAM ENGLISHED

Concerning the

Succession, &c.

Twas the Egyptian practice, before Physick was reduc'd into Art of Profession, to carry forth into the Roads and Highways, wild Difeas'd, and enquire of all passengers concerning the Casses and Remedies of their Differmers, our of whose prescriptions their Friends Rected, and applied what they judg demost properties all bases and place of the property

What was then done for the Natural, is now as necessary for the Body Politick of this Country, fick, almost unto death, of Fear and fealuries, the Plots and Devices of the wicked and ambitious; exposed to all Travellers, among whom good Nature and Self-prefervation, have at length, after two years filent compassion, prevailed upon me to give my opinion of the Cauries and Cares of our Evils; which I will offer without fear or favor of Party or Faction, of Court or City; chauting how far our apprehensions of Poperland Arbitrary Sectionary, that have so long discomposed us at home, and made us contemptible abroad, are instand reasonable.

Though I confess its faid, There never was Smooth without fame Fire, yet at first light it seems hard to believe that sober man shou'd ever attempt innovations, seldom or never advantageous, always hurtful, because needlarily arrended with the sad effects of Good Ware a calamity that has so lately proved fatal to the Kingdom in general, to the Kingdom in general, to the Kingdom which our Rassiana oversland we have fully consider a the rise, progest and even our Rassiana Kertling with shall grow calm and wife, permit the King to enjoy his own Prevogatives and content our selves with our shall king to enjoy his own Prevogatives and content our selves with our shall king to enjoy his own Prevogatives.

A 2

baising Markind.

nough (when these are invaded, if Religion even then will allow it,) to oppose, or stand upon our defence; to offer at it sooner is madness and folly,

Rebellion and Impierw

For the better coming to our point, 'tis necessary we take a review of the times preceeding Forty One, when from the end of King fames Reign, the people were, as now, full of murmurings, repinings and diffrusts against the Government. At last the smother'd Embers burst forth into a Flame; and after ten years Violence, War and Confusion, and near as many more of Usurpation and Tyranny, the Common-wealth was fo far from being better'd. by any of the many changes and expedients, that the recalling our Kingfrom his unjust Exile was found, and unanimously agreed, the only was to prevent its utter Ruin. Our Gracious Sovereign, merciful beyond example. pardons his Rebellious Subjects, the Murderers of his Royal Father, and the Usurpers of his own Crown and Dignity; loads, even among them, with Offices and Honor, fuch as feem'd penitent, and were capable. He then procceds, first to the resettlement of the Religion of the Church of England, like vertue feated in the middle, and equally endanger'd by the two extremes of Popery and Presbytery; and after, to that of the State in peace and quier, which we enjoy dro the chyy off our Neighbors. This happine is occasioned War with Holland France and Denmark , to their great Loss and the Renow of England ending in a League of friendship and amity for the general good of Europe. Nor long after the King was advis'd to grant a toleration for the ease of tender Consciences, and the advancement of Traffigue and Manufa-Quice I his was profe'd with arguments, that the want of it occasion'd Venner's Infurrection : the Plot in 1662 for which feveral fuffer das Tiburn, that in 1664 began in treland, and carried on in England, for which in I t 64, divers, were executed in York flint, as were others after in London, april 1666, who confessed and Thining Defign of his verting the Government leaving the Tomex and Biring of London the September following and with aldeclaring there were those behind of their Party chat would fill effect that defign, which as to that partitas reposition This is motorious from the historical account. publish d in 80. and confiore d by the Gazer ; hand therefore I cannot but wender acthe Commons Vote of last fannar, the Lorh. That it is the opinion of this House, that the City of Landon was burnt in the year 1666, by the Pamiles, deligning thereby to introduce arbitrary power and Popery into this. Kingdom to would be argueat facisfaction to the world to publish the grounds of this spinion, because that otherwise considering they did not pursue it, nor any reason assign what shou'd have hindred, it will hardly gain more credirebanthe Philosophens paradox, that Snow was black if have read of some. who never wanted epinions, could they but find arguments to make them probable; fdhwhich their beingar alossmade them ridiculous with the fober The are of Mankind

The King confents, and at the fame time declares a War whose infolence and injustice in point of Trade and Honour was become in-Supportable : Soon after the Parliament conven'd, and apprehending the Indulgence might in time prove destructive to the establish'd Religion. pray'd it might be revok'd, the King contrary to the then Minsters advice, answer achier delires. Hereupon they grow peevish, and thence forward yow and fludy all the methods of Revenge and Confusion, the with the hazard of the publick. Ever fince we have been continually alarm'd with Libels against the Government; at last a discovery is made of a Popish contrivance, fifted as far as possible by the King in Council, and after earneffly recommended to the Parliaments further confidention, This is purfued, but some men laying hold on this, design to drive it on to further purpofes, and under pretence of defending the Kings, Person and expelling Popery, ferup Presbytery, and pull down the Manarchy. But there being too firitha bond of mutual love and loyalty between the King and that Parhament, means are now us'd, upon a great Ministers being impeach'd. to have it diffoly'd : An Act that answer'd not his expectations. A new one is call'd, and exceeding the bounds of prudence and moderation quickly fent home A third is fummen'd, and the King having to this, as to the for mery over and over presidence impartial examination of the Plot, the tryal of the Lords and the care of the establish d. Roligion, wherein by all just and himful ways he often declar'd he would not follow, but heartily go along with the mood But slas ! they intended no fach thing. The Plot must be keps on foot offe they would be defeated. The King perceiving they full neglected the good of the publick, breaks them, and fummous a fourth ar Oxfords where I wish they may be inspired, with softness and prudence. antiverable to the defigns of the Place, and the needs of the Kingdom adAfterthis thorn account, is it possible to believe thele, who infinuate the King himself is in the Plan, is a Papill, and intends arbitrary Government Oh! riditations, nonfentical fancy, If the Plot be against his Person and Government, and contriv'd by Rapitts, and among them (as Hedlow has fworn Inone in England but have received the Sacrament uponit, and he be of the number, he must joyn with others to cut his own throat, stab, thoot, depoyton himfelf. But her's fome mystery in this pretty invention; Charles Spair confpires against the King; this imitating the Long Parliamene in his Fathers time, who fought for the King, for his politick capacity, against himself, his Natural, his Person, But, if he were a Papith, would he have pass'd into Lawslevery Bill tender'd him by both Houses, as well before as finos this Plate in their disfayour? and yet we know one of the godly Party was lately fin'd goo k for faying, The Duke of Fork was a Papill and the King little better; a faying no longer minc'd nor whifper'd, but now and ly loudry and planny Token every day. Con'd he have been wrought to a change of Religion, in the time of his banishment, he had not withstood, the offers of foreign Princes and the folicitations of a fond Mother, to rein-Rate him in his own Dominions with ablolute arbitrary powern Buchawas too much a Christian, and too good a King, not to prefer continuance in exile, to the deligns of enflaving his Subjects, wither in their fouls or in their Eddies. Must he now, in an Age defirous of rest and quiet, be upbraided with fuch purpofes, that had refolv'd against them in the hear of hisyouth thegreat four of ambition? Now when to compass this wicked and ridiculous project is as impossible, as before it was the contrary; when after his restoration besides foreign affiftance, offer'd at any rate, and to any purpose, he had an oblequious General? a victorious Fleet and Army, and a Carliament, whose zeal and devocion feem'd in nothing to be bounded but by the limits of his own pleasure; when to the immense treasure he was possest of the flow'd among his people with equal bounty sir was given, he might have added vafily by the confifcations of more than half the Estates and Wealth of the three Kingdoms. But inflead of this, he often pres'd his Parhament to expedite the Act of Oblivion, disbanded his Army, and enlarged the Fleez. by making one Squadron of more value than all three in the time of Queen Ellz! difabl'd, in all his Dominions, without exception, all Papits, from bearing any Office Civil or Mintary. Has he not pass on the Bill, exolteding for ever all Popish Lords out of the House, so which his Father could never be pertwaded? Has he not the wife currayld the Royal power bytwo other Acts, that of the Habens Corpus, and against Quartering of Souldiers Three Statutes, for which he might have had as many Millions, had he infiled on a bargain, or known how to diftinguish between his own drivate Interest and that of the fublect, of the truckling way of Bartoring, when the grod of his people was concern'd. Why did he, but for the lake of the Protestant Refigion refuse the elder Daughter of the Grown to the Daughin of France, and marry her to the Prince of Orange? And this without but ting his Partiament to the charge of a Portion, or a much greater Sum which they would have gladly given, had he made the propolition. And no other could be the motives of recalling his Troops from France, railing an Army for the defence of the Netherlands at the expence of above 2000qul. thing than was given, and his prohibiting Tradewith than Crown These things put a flop to the progress of that victorious King's Arms; occasion d' his quitting Meffina, and clapping up a general peace, when he was holt at the point of his propos'd Conquest. If our Prince intended an arbitrary Government, why befides his former neglecting the opportunity, would be disable Thinfell for the future, by parting with one of the greatest infirm-inchis for that purpose, the Court of wards and Liveries, Denutes in Capital se and Knight-Service, purveyance, &c. And what did he receive for this excess of bounty, for the chiefest and most useful flower of the Crown but a trifle, a feather, half the Excile, not above a fourth of the others. searly value. And after all this, Knaves invent, and Fools believe he is new ferring up for Tyranny and Popery, when his years are past the heat of ambition, his Coffers empty, France disoblig'd, and his own people as larm'd, and been against it with all imaginable resolutions of oppsition. Can any man imagine that a person, who disarms himself, intends to fight? Befides, What one Illegal Arbitrary Act has he done in his ewenty years Reight Whom has he defrauded of an Ox or an As, of life or polletion? Where has he in any one instance invalled magna charte, our Rights, Proerfies of Liberries & What Bill tendered by Parliament, for the fideurity of our Lives of Fortunes, has he rejected ? He pass'd all without exception; As for the Bill for intrufting the Parliament with the Militia for a limited time, reason then, and experience fince, has prov'd it was a needless encroschment on the Royal Prerogative without the least profoect of publick good, and to trave parted with that power bull for a moment, was for fo long to unking and divert thinsfolf of a nower tre con threat be certain would beleventereflor that he has freely passidall Laws; has he not as chearfully offerd to conact any thing that was agreable to Justice and Reason for out further (courily in Religion, Liberry and Property to do od or off, amendo

From the confiderations, nothing will appear more vain and idle than our Fearmand featoufes, our Factious and Seditious reflections on the Government. I will not fay without great caution, but we may run into those very things we so much dread, and would avoid, Hopery and French Government, or ( which is equally destructive of our Birth rights and Happinelle & Prestyery and a Commonwealth This will be no groundless furmiles if we look back, and observe that the Leav'n against the established Configuration both in Church and State has fowe'd almost the whole lump w the powden of Products, formerly known by the name of Puritamina, basch d as Fonds and General grown was head in Southerd with the Reformation on has infected the generality of the Kingdom, the common Traders and Dwelfers in Cities and Corporations and the funt binking and illiterate part of the Genery with hatted against Monarchy and the Church of Englande This was certainly die invention of Rome to overshow us, by thus fowing Dividence they well forefaw our Kingdom and Church in it felf divided could apprillorg, flainds will the Antimonarchical Principles and the fame in: both) the one as welf as the other dend Supremacy in the King, the Jefain will trave the Popel and the Probject Jefachis, Mitadal King killing and Date poling Deltrine is willowing by att bode it Physits as the Author even of Place Recommence does sporte from the serve on these formande phylately affect

ther :

100

ted the Opinion as problematical, for which themselves and writing t were cenfur'd and condemn'd, as falle and damnable; But ris justified, both be Books and Bractice of the whole Presbreeian party; tis fo plain and fresh in our memories. I need not infrance in the Alithors St. Peter's Chair is not more Infallible than that of an Affembly of Presbuert in a National Class fis or Synod. Men of thefe Antichriftian Principles firt'dup the Lite Rebellion, and being active and diligent, drewin many unwary honest ment beyond the power of retreating Did not the Faction here rampen in Scotlands where the promoters of the Covenant, what Godly Justinament, apply die the Crown of France for protection, as appears by the Letter found with the But what was the iffue of this Contrivance, but Confession and Misery through the three Kingdoms, the Bresterian party overpoweld by the Independents; and these again by the Menry a Commonwealth fet up and foon after turn'd into a perfect Tyranny under Oliver Crommel; after more money had been illegally fourer'd from the Subjects by Ordinances and Loans, Sequestrations and Decimations, Excise and other Impositions, than was ever known before op fince? The people weary, call home their Prince. who by an excels of mercy and clemency, fparing to root up men of thefe Principles, gave way to their infecting others with the fame humour of differ content. "Tis to be observ'd, that the year 1535, is remarkable for the Gent mud Reformation, and the spanning of the Poluits Order, and that our the lucky home-bred Divisions were fomented, if not first fet on foot wither hand, by directions from the Court of France, as well as from Rome, the Interest of that State, as well as of the Church, depending on our Distraction dny to which end Richlien, that great Minister, imploy'd many Pensioners into Scotland, asdid after his Successor Manarine in England. And therefore there is nothing more intenficierate than to think we are not now actipgrands promoting Frieds Deffeath stim their butiness to divide us, and vet to manage the Ballance, what they lephelther the King nor Parliament have the better; on ever come to a right understanding : They canno os. theswife obtam the Western Empire, and signifethly against their Interest everyofiffer England to be either alperfect Monarchy, or an absolute Commoniversish. Those that roar mon against French Councils and Measures. impler diand bargains and agreements between both the Kings, know they bely rheir own Confidence, and that the French have us in the last degree of I concempent This the Built Daipointed in his own Windication, pethaps hoe is not a prichar forme of the in Ministers did, in the year 16754 and 28 befored the Beaking forth of the Plot , declare, That Manfear Labed greater futhe hand mode friends in England then the De of Y . That the K. had need be on the Ghardy for he was in a great danger of running the same risque with his Enther 3 te.d

ther; when it was likewise enquir'd, What Interest among Peers had, who have fince the Plot been the great Pillars of the Protestant Religion, the neither was ever reputed to have any, were Ministers and Advisers in 1670. and 71. very good friends to France and Popery, Enemies to the Triple Alliance, and to Holland, &c. It was also said, That 300000 l. a year bestow'd in Scotland and England, among the Factious and Discontented, wou'd better ferve the Interest of France, than any Bargainthey cou'd drive with the Ministers. 'Tis too well known that the greatest of these two Noblemen made a secret journey into France, some weeks before the Plot, after some private Transactions here with others, among whom were Sir E. L. fam'd for Religion, for Morality, Major W. and H. N. as notorious for the same perfections and their love of Monarchy, and hatred of a Commonwealth nor did A. S. want his share in the Consultation, a stout affertor of Prerogative, witness'd by his and others living out of this Kingdom, ever fince the Kings Restauration, untill they faw fome likelyhood of a change, the one returning about the time the D. of B. and the other Lords were in the Tower, and the other a few months before the breaking forth of the Popifo Conspiracy; which no fooner came before the Parliament than fome of the great Lords of the Committee for the Examination of the Plot kept their Consultations, and manag'd much of that Affair at Walling ford-House, Major W. their Secretary, where they concluded to take hold of this opportunity for the carrying on some long-hatch'd Designs of their own. Nor is it to be forgotten that in June before, a Letter was writ by an eminent person of the Faction, and can be now produced, That very shorely somewhat would be discover'd, shat won'd prevent our much linger walking in the dark; and that one of the greatest Lords fent to an Aftrologer to know whether he was not in a short while to be in the bead of 60000 men. The methods agreed upon in France, and purfu'd here, were to make a Court and Country-party, to fow and disperse fealousies between both, and widen the gap with all possible Devices; which resolutions some here were the coner induc'd to embrace, upon this consideration, That they shou'd not live to see the iffue, and were unconcern'd for what shou'd come after. But yet I am too charitable to think, if we have any French Agents at home, they are impos'd upon by their own unwariness, and the others cunning, to actrather against, than with, their knowledge, a part fo much contrary to the Interest of England, and the Duty of a Christian. But however it be, I am morally affur'd we are doing their work; and if we are not Knaves and Penlioners, we are Blockheads or Fools, that are blind and besorted like men prepar'd for Destruction. Quos Jupiter perdere vult, hos dementat. If any one talks thus, he is presently call'd a Papil and a Tory; every true Son of the Church of En land, and Loyal Subject, is branded with Nick names and run down by Noise and Faction; and he that

13

0

כים

ad

17

y, I he defends not Presbytery, is but a Protestant in Masquerade, if he commends Mon web) and our Legal Conflictutions, to the discredit of a Commonwialih, he is a Ruscal, a Villain, and a dangerous Person. not confidering that we are made Tools and Infruments for French purpofes. betray'd by their Cunning and Address, to forward and act with our own hands, our Slavery and Ruine. Shall we be still blind and deaf to reason and demonstration? Can we not reflect upon the French double-dealing in our late Civil Distractions, and remember what the Lord Keeper Puckering tells the Parliament in Q. Elizabeth's days, That the Puritans, even at the time of the Spanish preparations for Invasion, were urging and pressing intestine Commotions, where he largely fets forth their being as dangerous to the Crown and Mitre as the others, and therefore that both were to be equally suppress'd, Papifts and Puritans. I cannot find that either have fince alter'd their Principles, and confequently cannot but wonder why the Papifts frou'd be persecuted, and the other countenanc'd, even against Law and former Statutes. 'Tis furely very imprudent to expect your House will be warm by flutting a Window, and ferting open the Doors. And therefore because in this I can freely agree with Plato Redivivus, that the fear of Popery is not the cause of our present disturbances; I shall without regard to Refe gion, consider the Papilts and Presbyterians as two Factions in the State. like the Arminians and Logisfiein party in Holland; and as fach pronounce that both are to be suppress'd, or neither, because by emptying only one of she Scales, the Ballance is broken, and the Court or Monarchical party is first weaken'd and destroy'd, and after the whole form of Government alter'd into that of a Commonwealth; and I am fully convincid, if that had nor been that Authors Deligns, as to an ordinary Reader is past doubt, he wou'd have fet down this as one of the Remedies of our prefent Evils. But the centrary was his purpose, and in order to it he cunningly, to preserve the Monarchy, would fet up a plain Democracy, and for an English King. obtrude upon us a Doeg of Venice; for he tells your at large that the antient Power of the King is fallen into the hands of the Commons, and therefore to keep up the former illustrious splendor of the Crown, he won'd have all its Jewels taken out, and fet about the Speakers Chair, the King made a Cypher, and divested of all Power but the Name, to keep up the three feyeral and distinct shares in the Government, King, Lords and Commons. Tis an ingenious way of arguing, but we are not yet, I hope, frich fools to have it pass, to venture at play, and not know how to diffing with falle Dice. Oh! but fays a Factions Petitioner, that takes the House of Commons Conficiently provid by the learned Answer to Perit's Book, to have had no thare, in the Legillative power) to be the Parliament; all their Votes, how wild and unreasonable loever, as we have lately as well as formerly feen in print, to be the sence of the Nation, and have the for deny any Authority to the Kings Proclamation: This Scribler ( lays he) is Popillily affected, a French deligner, a meer Tory; not confidering that there is not less hazard in splitting upon a rock, than upon a fand-bank; that if I must be a slave, and forfeit my liberty, 'twere at least as good to do so under a fingle person, as more; the tyranny of marty is much more intolerable than that of one. 'Tis equally destructive of my liberty, whether the King or the House of Commons, takes away Magna Charta; I am ffill against arbitrary Government, ruling according to pleasure, not the Laws and known Conflitutions of the Land, whether affum'd by King or Commons, if there be any choice, the odds are against the latter. And to speak trinth, by what has pass'd fince the Plot, any one in his wits, would believe, the King is invaded, not an invader; that his frequent Propogative ons and Diffolutions have been his legal defensive weapons, us'd as much for his Subjects fecurity, as his own honour; that arbitrary power is a del licious thing, and therefore aim'd at by our Demagogues and Tribunes of the people; bad and to be decry'd, only while in the Soveraign. Tisvery convenient to cry Whore first. Solomon tells us, Ho that appeareth first in his own cause, seemeth just; but his neighbour cometh after and proverh him. If the people in an Island are alarm'd that an Invalion is delign'd, and that only at one Port, and they become fo foolish as for the guard of that, to neglect and expose all other, they do but make the easier way for their enemies to land and overcome. Those, who are the Watchmen, the Sentinels of our fafery, ought with fanu to have two faces, one behind and the other before; and many eyes like Argus, there being otherwise no security against fur prize. Tremember in Thucydides, that the Gretians befreging a strong Co ty, found no means but stratagem to become Masters, which they thus contrived: After they had puchas'd within fome Penfloners, they kept the befieged awake, and put them into a great diffres by continual falle a farms, and, as delign'd, prepar'd to believe nothing more was intented. vantage, affirmed they ought for the future to make it death to any watch man to give the Alarm. This decreed, notice was given to the chemy and without the least refistance the befreg'd were taken and undone, when and where they least suspected; whereupon this Proverb was taken up. Amount perdidit filentium. I wish we may never run the same sate; the application is too easie and natural to be dwelt upon.

print,

And yet I cannot but take notice how the late House of Commons have affum'd to themselves a power extraordinary, and by a yote without proof or conviction, made eminent men and known Protestants, guilty of Forety and French designs, made them Advisers and Counsellors according to prison'd several DURING PLEASURE, seiz'd Closets and Writings without Information, and contrary to Magna Charta, voted Acts of Parliament, made for the preservation of the establish'd Religion. uscless, and their execution grievous to the Subject against the Protestant interest, and an encouragement to Popery, &c. and among these, which is most wonderful, a Law made by the darling Queen Eliz. who cannot well be supposed to have been a friend to Popery. If these be not odd and arbitrary proceedings, I know not what are, nor why that should be rolerable or lawful for them, which is not for any, no not for our Sovereign. Confidering men are afraid the abettors of fuch practices are not friends to peace and quiet, but rather factious and dangerous, willing to enflave us to foreign Invalions or domestick Encroachments, whatever may be faid to the contrary, these actings are but too good grounds for such apprehenfions. The cunningest Whores seem most devout, and inveigh very bitterly against the lewdness they daily study & commit. Your rooking Gamesters abhor, if you will believe their thams and oaths, the use of false Dice, and the un-Gentleman-like-trick of cheating. However, none but Cullies. who want wit or years to make observation, can be wheedl'd and drawn in by fuch pretences.

B 2

Before the discovery of the Plot our Ministers were reflected on, as defigning Popery and Arbitrary Government, by many scandalous Pamphlets. and one in particular call'd, an Account of the Growth of Fopery, &c. asif the people were to be prepar dito believe the whole Court were Popish; that while they were alarm'd against that party, they might be unprovided to defend themselves against the other. The Presbyterian true blue, who like Alog's Car, though transform'd into the beautiful shapes of Court-Imployments and Honors, will fill be hankering after the old fort of Mouling they will ewen be lovers of a Common-wealth, and enemies to Monarchy. This is plain from former as well as later, proceedings, fince the discovery of the Popish Plot, when they began to thew them elves in their proper colors, when they cry approprie the Court, but the Church was Popilh, and all that are for the establish'd Government. You cannot now be loyal, unless you are factious, nor a Protestant if no Presbyterian. But pray observe, none tell you this. bur the fraws of those seduc'd, or concern'd in the late Rebellion; men turn'd our or that won'd get into Court-Imployments, that account themselves dighted or disoblig'd, men of great Ambition, or of desperate Fortunes, who make all this noise and clutter, to be taken off. To what purpose elie did the face House of Commons make the Vote against the bargain or hopes of Court preferment, but that fuch a delign was a driving between fome leading Members and Courtiers ? Can they after fuch a discovery pretend zeal for Religion, and the good of their Country? For thame, let not Faction and private Interest make men forgetful of the pr quiet of the Nation: Let them secure our Constitutions against the encroachments or invalions of any, whether Presbuter or Papil ; and remember that the most forwad in the Long Parliament were foon turn'd out by others: and because what is Samee for a Goose is samee for a Gander, this of course will be the fate of those, who now glory in being Ringleaders of Fastion to thwart and oppose their Sovereign; Nay, it may possibly be worse, the Gentlemen, the Knights of the Shires, may be kick'd out by Mechanicks, by Citizens and Burgeffes i for he that practifeth Difobedience to his Superiors, teacheth it to his Inferiours. Sir W. 7. Sir F. W. Collonel T. &c. all know were disobliged, and if taken into favour, the Employments and Honours they cover, wou'd frand up for the Court, as much as now they do against it. Whether the Petitioning Lords be not of the same temper, will belt appear from the story of every fingle person. One of them has the humour convey of with's Bloud, His Father was a Gentleman that appear'd zcalous in the long Parliament for the good of his Country. the first that brought in the complaint of Ship-money. But fodnafter when he was made a Lord and a Courtier, he chang'd notes and fung another fong. no man more for the Monarchy, in its defence he loft his life, and at his death publickly repented his actings against the Earl of Staffend, His Son was made an Earl upon the Kings return, Sont Embaffador Abroad, and Lord Lieutenant into Ireland; to get his command he defpis'd not the Courtthip and affiftance of Coll. T. though a R. Co and a Creature of his R. H.to whom he made no flender Professions; not being fatisfied with gaining wastly in that Station five years, he grows prevish in hopes of being fent the fegond time, nay rather than fail he is content to be Commissioner of the Treasury. in hopes that by the Courtfhip and Interest of some Women, no matter what Religion they are of he may come to be Lord Treasurer : Bur not like to gain the White Staffe, and perhaps not caring to govern an empty Exchequer, he bent his Thoughts again rowards Ireland; flighting the Treasury he is outed. and grows more discontented; and at last rurn'd out of Council, the next day he repeats a Speech of E.of S.his making, and unask'd prefents a piece of Councel and Advice to His Sovereign, pretending as a Peer it was his duty. I am forry his zeal made him forger, that Peers have no right of advising the King, but when he makes them of his Council, or by Writ Summons emite Parliament And what's very odd, he advises just the contrary to what he and the other Noble E.had done the year before, when Courtiers. This Noblemans Life wou'd make a Comical History , he knows how to put on all shapes, and in the late times, was not ignorant how to make an Apple tree fupply the place of a Pulpir, he knew how to ferve himfelf in all turns and changes, and has not fail'd fince 1640, to have been often out and in with the feveral High m his due, he is a man of extraordinary Parts, but if one of these Lords said true, when he was a Courtier, and the other newly remov'd, they are abfirted and turn'd for confounding and amuting, but not for extricating out of difficulties. He wants not Wit to hold forth in the Houle. or in the open Air, upon occasion; nor is he meanly skill'd in the methods of Court-Pleasures, as well as Business. He must have an ill memory that forgets who advised the breaking the Triple League, and making an Alliance with France, and a War with Holland, pronouncing in the Language of the Beaft, Dolonda of Canthago, that's Dutch Common-wealth was too near a Neighbor to an English Monarch; the Shutting up the Exchequer the granting Injunctions in the case of the Bankers, and lastly the source of all our present misfortunes the general indulgence. Their things being found of ill confequence, and the Ministers removed as deligners of Pepery, Presbytery, Atheilm, for Irreligion, Arbitrary or French Government a must any of fuch Principles affoot as curn dout of Gourt, be received into the Country, as if thele two had different largrefts? Whoever fay there is more than one common wealth in both are Deluders and Incendiaries and Betrayers of the Nation. Those that Arive to divide the King and his People, are to be look'd upon as Pensioners of France, and to be most severely punish d. There are that can tell Tales, what Great man fince the Plot offer'd a Reconciliation with the D. and for a Restopation to his former Power and Greatness, wou'd be his Servant to all intents Dipurpoles. But the D.cou'd not be perfiveded, one that had as often chang'd Parties as Peorous his Shades and the Chamelon his Colors, cou'd be true to aby Interest, but his own ; and therefore rejected his many Messages on this Ribject. Another Petr, whole Son in the Lower House, is the great Tribune of the People, would have had a Dukedom added to the Garter, to make both Sing to another Tune: Wforth would fain be a Privy Councellor in Revertion. the fifth not long fince ar any rate of purchase, wou'd have been Matter of the Horsevo the Doke Strange t that a Protestant Lord should think of serving adingon'd Popula Prince and after hope though thus mounted on Horleback. to get to Heaven T wou'd be tedious to give particular accounts of all; onby the way observe that a Young Lord newly come to Age, own'd himfold to His Majesty Disoblig'd, because after a Voyage to Tangier, his great Welor there flown, and fpending his Youth in his Prince's Service, these were his sten words to the King another was preferred to the Command of the Lord bannon by Regiment of cannon but commend this Noblemans Ingenuity in swiffing the true Caure, and not presending as others, Conference and publick good for his motives, . Bur I am forty he fould forget, not only the oblipations of grantude A which he is under for his Bread and for his Honor, but allo who fave. Appear not wife before the King, and give not Counsel unash'd. He has learning enough to understand the meaning of in confilmm non vo-Catus

carm ne accefferis. Tis to be hop'd he may repente

wie may be turn'd into Wildon.

As for the D. of M. Ibelieve him perfectly drawn in by deligning Polifficians for ends of their own, who never intended him more than as an nieth Tool afterwards to be fald afide. Tis no wonder that one of his Youth and Solrit thou dbe tempted with the Baits and Allurements of a Crown. the folendor and gaity of Power has blinded many Elder men's understand ings. But that they never had him in their thoughts for K. appears from the Author of Plato Rediview; and indeed if they had they went the wrong way to work. They shou dhot have engag'd him to far, as to deferve his being turn'd out of his Command as General; a Post, that won'd have best enabl'd him to feize from and make good any precede to the Grown after the death of his Majelty I thin apt to believe his Grand is forty for what is paft: I am certain is were his interest to thrown himself arche Kings Feer. and guit the Countels of thole men, who intributing for themselves, puff him up with falle hopes, and yet fufficiently discover that nothing is farther from their hearts than his Exaltation on what is to much in their mouths. publick fervice to the King and Country. Tis much better for him to be content with the fecond place in the Kingdom, charby pretending to the first atgainst all manner of reason, and the obligations of graticude, forfeitall, his bely our Conferences, and publish to inturo big and room on Viet

The Petition being already answer'd, I will only observe, that His Maleft. intending to turn them out, fent Mr. Serenery to the E. of E. for a Lift of the Papists he mention'd in the Guards; But the Noble Rombad none to give, but that be fuppos'd to have taken the story upon hearly. from forme that had the malice to invent it. And now must the Nation fulfor themselves to be rid by any Fastion, because designing particular advantages, they guild all with the specious pretences of Religion and Loyaltze star-ricular respect for the Church of England, by opening her Mooss wall Diftenters, and for the Monarchy, by clipping the Kings popier to prenent the Papill's Contrivances against his Persons Drainine whether the nealous Hicklers for the Proteffant Religion, have any ac all ; or of they have, when ther it be not as far from that Establish't by Law, as Popery ? Whether if the King would grant their defires, receive them into Offices and Power, they wou'd not fland up in justification of the Court as fiercely as now they do the contrary? What has been before, may well be expected again. He that confiders this, and that malice never poke well of any, will give the Factions little credit; especially, when against reason and sense they would impole about us, that the King himfelf is in the Plant or asone of the Members in a printed Speech tells the House, The Plorisade formach in the Tower, asin White-Hall! there tis to be feureh'd for med chiese coibe foundy And all

og himself, and put his Crown into their hands, and against Law, his Coronation-Oath, and brotherly affection, pass the Bill of Exclusion, to the prejudice of himself and the whole Kingdom. This is not a fingle or private man's opinion, but the judgement of the Supreme Tribunal of England, the House of Lords; where upon the first reading it was thrown out, with the odds of 63 against 31 1 for which reason their Lordships are called Marquerading Protestants, Tories, Papilts, or their adherents; as if the Lords must not be allowed the priviledge the Commons. take with any of their Bills, without censure and affront. But why for their Act must His Majesty be lovally libell'd and dispers'd? It had been time enough one wou'd have thought, to have call'd him Papist. Ora. had he rejected the Bill after it had pass'd both Houses Oh! then who could have doubted, but his doing more against the Papists than any of his Predecessors. had been promoting their laterest, that his pardoning no man condemned, nor ftopping the execution of any Law against Recusants, was making it no Plot, and that passing the Test was letting in Popery by whole-fale. He that can believe these things, is prepar'd for any thing, to say a Lobster is Whale, or a Whale a Lobster; that the Moon is a Green-Cheese, and the Sun a round Plate of red hot Iron; and then, I presume, it may not be decided whether we are Fools or Madmen. Let us not idly and unjustly bely our Consciences, and publish to the Nation and all the World, that northing can fecure us against Popery, but the shaking and alteration of the Monarchy. by the Bill of Exclusion, an Act in it felf unjust and impolitick, both for the King and People. Noman is to be punish'd expelt-facto, by the Laws of this and all other Countries. Besides, why shou'd the Duke, more than any Fanatick of England, be outed his Birth-right? The Scripture fave. You must not do evil, that good may come of it; And Prudence will rell us. That this an evil, that must be attended with greater, For the minute that it puffesahe Duke is at liberty to recover his Right by fecret or open Viblence: Foreign or Domeftick; He is declar'd an Enemy and a Traytor . condemn'd without Trial or Conviction. This piece of injustice must be defended by an Afforiation or an Army; this Army must be entrusted in the hands of the King or a General, either may make himself Absolute and Arbitrary and therefore if people are now afraid of flavery from the Government, what may then be their apprehensions? And if they are jealous of the King, what General will they find to entrust? Those meanly skill'd in Hory know that Commanders of Armies have at pleafure fubverted Commonwealths and Kingdoms: Agathecles from being General became Tvrant of Syrarufu ; Piffratu of Athons, Sforza of Millain, the Medici of Flo-Take the Cafars of Rome, and not to go fo far off, Cramwel of the three Kingdoms Most of the Roman Emperors were dethrown'd by their Generals:

rals; and therefore this cannot but make the King as unwilling as the People, to entrust this great Power in any person. And yet without such a trust the Act of Exclusion is not woth a straw inor with it can we be secur'd against Slavery, whether the Duke conquer or be overcome. The Duke will fill find a party, at least if he out-lives the King, in the Three Kingdoms to fight his Quarrel; and if he comes in by Force, he may well use us like a conquer'd Nation, break our old, and give us what Laws and Religion he pleafes; Whereas if we attempt no fuch thing, we shall not run the hazard of a CIVIL WAR, the King being as likely to out-live, as to be outliv'd by, His Brother. If he shou'd chance to succeed peaceably, he cannot be presum'd to offer any alteration in Religion so much against his Interest, and who never forwarded any in his own Family, suffers his Children to continue in the Church of England, knowing that Christianity forbids compulsion for its propagation. To fay he wou'd be Priest-ridden, is ridiculous; why he more than the French King, who openly oppofes the Popes Usurpation, and allumes to himself the cognizance even of Churchaffairs? This is but a pretence to impose upon the ignorant and the credulous; if there be not Laws enough already, new ones may be made to prevent any fuch intention. When all Offices and Power are in the hands of Anti-papifts, I cannot see where can be our danger.

But this, if granted, wou'd not be all, the Monarchy is hereby made elective, and the possessor may as well be remov'd, as the successor debart'd. In order to this, is there not a History of the Succession publish'd, shewing that the Monarchy is rather elective than hereditary? Of which here I will only say, that the Writer is a notorious Plagiary, and steals all out of a seditious Book writ on the same Subject by Parfons the Jesuit, under the name of Daleman, in Queen Elizabeths time, with defign of distracting the people, and making way for a Spanish Conquest and Inquisition; the Presbyterian Transcriber proves himself of the same Jesuitical principles, and with equal honeffly pursues the same ends, Usurpation and Slavery. Tisnot to be doubted, but that there has been frequent interruptions of the Succession of the Crown; but no title, but that of the Sword, was ever put in ballance with proximity of bloud, and he that will oppose Fact to Right is very unjust, and argues not upon the principles of Morality, nor the Laws of Nations. Much such another good Christian, is the Writer of The Appeal to the City, who tells us, if we let up a King with none or a crack'd title, we shall have the better Laws; and instances that Richard the 3d. an Usurper, a Murderer, and a Tyrant, made excellent Statues. But he might, had he been just, have found the Laws of that King out done by those of our present Soveraign, whose ritle none can question.

And yet it is not unreasonable to suspect a delign on foot of subverting the archy, if it be confider'd that passing the Bill against the Duke, will not alone satisfie his adversaries, who further expect that all those now firm to the King be remov'd, and their trust put into confiding hands; and thus when they had him in their own power, it would be no hard matter to act their pleasure. The Speech disown'd by the Protestant Lord, and burnt by the Hangman (a fate the Author does certainly deserve) tells us in plain English, We must have a Change, and a King we may trust, and well affected Counsellors, with much more treasonable and seditious stuff. These things. and the frequent mentioning the fates of Edw. 2. Rich 2. and Hen. 6. cannot but alarm His Majesty, and restrain him from ever complying with such perfons against his only Brother. He has so often affirm'd the Bill shon'd never pass, that he cannot now without diminution of his own honor, as well as fafety, alter his well-grounded resolution, taken upon the sense of conscience and duty, the pre ent and future good of himself and people. An act that wou'd be the highest violation of Magna Charta, that ordains none shou'd be put by his birth-right and inheritance, but by the Law of the Land, and legal process. And therefore I hope, what cannot be suppos'd, will be granted, will no longer be infifted on, left the consequences prove fatal.

Monarchy.

One thing I cannot but admire, that the Duke shou'd be absolutely excluded on supposition of being a Papist, for otherwise he is allow'd by all a Prince of incomparable vertues and endowments, leaving no room for enjoying his right, in case he become Protestant. Do they suppose an alteration of opinion impossible? that's false and foolish. There are instances of men that have changed often, and to mention no more, the Dukes Grandfather Hen 4. twice alter'd his opinion. Befides, it is unjust, and contrary to their own practice, for L.Br. was an imprison'd Plotter, but assoon as he became a Convert, without further process or tryal he was innocent and acquitted. We do in this exceed the Papifts in France, and condemn our Protestant Ancestors, and all others abroad, who accused them as Antichriftian and Rebellious, for opposing their lawful King Hen, 4 on the score of Religion; for the Parifians lov'd his person, and stood upon no other condition than his turning Papist, to receive him for their Sovereign; as all the other R. C's. of that Kingdom had done before. And therefore I very much suspect we are grown weary of Monarchy, and w than inconstancy natural to Islanders, affect a Change though for the worfe. To this I am induced by many Reasons, and nor a little from a Prorestant Lords Speech, the last Sessions, That the People of Athens were fo fond of good King Codrus, that they r. [div dto have none after him. But to attempt. this piece of folly and wickedness, will inevitably embroyl us in a Civit War. And of that the event is so uncertain, that we ought to dread the loss of all, by striving to enlarge our present liberties. This madness ordinary prudence will carefully avoid, because in all probability the King must get the better; his condition is not like his Father: He has frame which the other wanted, to Guard his Person; he has the Militia in his own hands, he has no Scorch nor Irilly Rebellion, to divide or diffract his Forces ; and above all, he has the Parliament in his own power, to let them Sit or not Sit, at his pleafure and their good behaviour. And 'tis happy he has this power, to fecure himself from popular fury, at this time especially, when whatever the Papifts have done, we daily fee others run into Clubs and Cabals, diftinguishing them elves by Green Ribbans, by general Committees and Subcommittees, where all Transactions of Parliament are first defign d and hammer'd, Collections made, a Common Purse manag'd, and Agents employ din every County, to prepare and influence the people, write and dif-perfe falle News, Libels against the Government, Addresses made and sent into every Shire and Borough, and if the Members do not go down to their Elections, they can Print for them fuch Speeches as serve their purpose. Witness one my Lord Vanghan spoke at his Election, though his Lordship was nor out of London, I have not heard before, that Sir Samuel Morl and Speaking Trumpet cou'd convey a voice a hundred Miles distance. But this is nothing with our True Protestant Intelligencer B. H. who printed an Address from the City of Colchefter, that never was feen nor prefented by any of the Inhabitants, as by an Instrument under the Town-Clarks hand does plainly appear. But though Swearing be, Lying is not, against the interest or practice of the Godly; the Presbyserian, true off-fpring of the Ionarian Fathers, who out do them in the Doctrin of Pin Frances, as well as in all o ther their immoral and Antimonarkick Principles.

And now confidering that none that have any thing to loofe, can ever get by a Rebellion, and that there is no just pretence for one, our Liberties and Properies not being broken or invaded, the Rich, unless they are mad. will never begin; and yet with, or without their affiftance a Rifing of fact Cade or War Tyler instigated by greater persons, will bur inlarge the Regal Power, and enrich the Crown . And for the leand many more reasons I look upon the Threats or Fears of Rebellion, as idle and vain, as our lealounes and Apprehentions of Popery, hever possible in England but by a Civil War fince their numbers here are but asone 162 3d and by an exact calculation in the three Kingdoms, the whole number of Papiffs is but as one to 205. non-Papiffs, and their wealth and policifions is not one to 200. If their power had been fo terrible, they wanted not fince the Plot provocations to make us feel, as well as hear on't. But these noises are like Armies in difguise at Knights-bridge, and Regiments of Horse hid in Cellars under ground. and blowing up the Thames to drown London; artifices formerly us'd to draw in the easie and the credulous. But 'tis to be presum'd, the same trick

3 25 7

County Co

Acone police or all contracts and acone
alone and un de l'alone produce acone
alone acone de l'alone de l'alone acone
alone acone de l'alone acone de l'alone
alone acone de l'alone acone acone
alone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone acone
acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone acone a and acceptant to remember the solution of and acceptant through the solution of the solution o

Malabara Three aleaster repo

139411